1. In response to reftels A and B Econoff initiated efforts with MilGroup Army Officer to confirm the purchase by the Colombian Army (COLAR) of 28 power supply units from Israel. After receipt of reftel C, Econoff understood that the items referenced in reftel A had been incorporated into nine computer display units (CDUs), and that these CDUs were then incorporated into nine 155 millimeter howitzers by General Dynamics/Santa Barbara of Spain (GD).

2. On November 8, Econoff and MilGroup Army Officer met with Lt. Albino of the Administrative Section of the Armaments Division of the COLAR to determine if the COLAR had purchased nine 155 millimeter howitzers from GD. Lt. Albino confirmed that the COLAR had purchased nine 155 millimeter howitzers (delivered in September 2007) that were in use by the COLAR. However, Lt. Albino was unable to confirm who had sold the weapons to the COLAR.

3. On November 27 and December 21 Col. Jairo Alfonso Aponte Preto, head of COLAR logistics, provided MilGroup Army Officer with additional information, including the contract for the nine 155 millimeter howitzers. The contract was between the COLAR, MLM International Corporation of the USA (MLM) and Brackley Consulting and Finance Services of Colombia (Brackley).

4. On December 27 Econoff contacted Brackley to determine if the nine 155 millimeter howitzers were originally from GD. Brackley legal representative Alberto Esguerra Gouffray stated that Brackley had been acting as a sales representative for MLM in the sale of the nine 155 millimeter howitzers. Gouffray further stated that while he understood that nine 155 millimeter howitzers were manufactured by GD, Brackley did not have a direct contract with GD.

5. On December 28 Econoff contacted MLM to verify whether the nine 155 millimeter howitzers the COLAR purchased were from GD. MLM Sales Director Robert G. Suber confirmed that the nine 155 millimeter howitzers sold to the COLAR were from GD.
